

HARRIS EXPECTS TIGERS TO FINISH HIGH

DETROIT AMERICANS HAVE STRONGER CLUB THAN LAST SEASON

Utility Strength Good; Corps of Hurlers Ranks with Best in League.

By The Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., March 16.—Detroit's Tigers are not trying to win the American league pennant before the season starts, but Manager Bucky Harris wants the baseball world to know that his team will have to be considered when it comes to exchanging baseball for springtime glory.

The 34-year-old, black-haired whip of the Tigers, whose team finished sixth and fifth respectively since he took over the reins in 1929, believes he has assembled a squad that will end up where the fruit grows sweetest at or near the top.

Bucky, who struts his stuff like a gam-crook and rules his roost with the efficiency of a backwoods schoolmaster, says his squad will bob up around the opening of the season with a fighting spirit second to none.

"The club is stronger all 'round than last year. Our infield has plenty of utility strength with Joe Dugan, Marvin Owen and Marty Koenig. Marty McManus is favoring his knee, which was operated upon and if he isn't ready, Dugan will handle third base nicely. You know all about young Owen—I think he is the best prospect I have seen in seven or eight seasons. Bill Akers made a fine showing at shortstop last season, he figures to start there again. But if he doesn't keep up the pace, I'll have Owen in there."

If Charley Gehring isn't the best second baseman in the league, then my name isn't Harris. Big Dale Alexander will do at first base until a better man comes along. "Much of the success of the club depends on the ability of three young outfielders to rise to the occasion. I have all the confidence in the world in Frank Dill, Hubby and Gerald. If they don't click, I still have experienced men in Roy Johnson, Elias Funk and Johnny Stone."

"We have a quartet of aces in Walter Hoyt, Vic Sorrell, George Uhle and Earl Whitehill. Hoyt has forgotten the 'playboy' stuff that came up during the latter part of his New York Yankee days. He is in the best condition I have seen him in for many years. I expect him to win twenty games. We also have plenty of reserve pitching strength.

"That is about the size of the works, except that we won't have to be ashamed of our catching staff this season. Wally Schang acts as if he discovered a fountain of youth.

He came to us as a free agent and was supposed to be all right. The answer is, he is going to be one of our regulars. We bought Johnny Grabowski from St. Paul. He is still good enough for the majors. Ray Hayworth was with us last year."

Racing Star To Make One More Speedway Trial

By International News Service.
INDIANAPOLIS, March 16.—Harry Hartz, famous racing star, may make one more bid for personal honors on the track in the 500-mile race here in May, it became known today.

In six starts on the Indianapolis track he was second three times, fourth twice and failed to finish only once. He brought a car to the track last year, engaged Billy Arnold, a dashing youth, as driver, and saw his stable colors flash to victory.

This year Hartz has entered two cars. One Arnold will drive. It is likely he will pilot the second car himself.

"I had to quit driving," explains Hartz who is 34 but who has the appearance of a 24-year-old beginner, "because of an accident in October 1927 in which a leg was broken and which kept me on crutches and canes for two years. I had hoped to drive the Miller-Hartz Special I took to Indianapolis last May. But after a long series of practice rides I had to admit to myself—and what was more difficult, to my wife—that I could not press the 'game' leg on an accelerator pedal for 500 mile miles."

"This year, however, I feel that I will be strong enough to make the long ride. And I certainly want to. It was terrible to stand in the pit last year and watch my pilot, Billy Arnold, have all the fun of winning. It's really more than I can stand to watch somebody else drive than drive myself—that is if you ever have driven."

Hartz has entered the front wheel drive Miller-Hartz Special which Arnold drove to victory last May and which he will drive again this year. The second car is a rear wheel drive Duesenberg Special.

"There certainly will be variety in my team," says Hartz, "with a front wheel drive and a rear wheel drive, each of them built by two specialists of racing reputation."

Hartz now has one of his cars—the front wheeler—on the Pacific coast, where it is being overhauled for the coming race. The second car is already in Indianapolis.

"We will open our garage about April 1," says Hartz, "and have everything ready for the race a couple of weeks in advance of the time limit."

Len Harvey, English Middleweight Champ, Meets Ben Jeby in New York.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 16.—Len Harvey, British middleweight champion, who came here with a record listing 249 victories and only one defeat but has only two more whippings to show for his efforts in this country, will try again in Madison Square garden Friday night.

The pale Briton, beaten twice by rough and ready Vince Dundee, stacks up against Ben Jeby of New York, a second-rater, in a bout that will determine whether Harvey's American tour will continue, or come to an abrupt and somewhat inglorious conclusion.

Last Minute Basket Beats Y-Indus in Tourney 29-28

A long range field goal by a substitute Columbus forward was enough to defeat the Y-Indus basketball club in the state Y tourney at Hamilton Saturday. The final score was 29-28 for Columbus. The capital city five then moved into the finals of the tourney and won the state Y. M. C. A. championship by defeating Hamilton 25 to 19.

The Shovel Y-Indus club jumped into the lead at the start of the game and held an advantage most of the time. Columbus battled hard and kept within striking distance of the locals all of the game. The game was unusually tough, numerous fouls being charged to both teams. Bill Keller, Marion guard, went out with four to his credit early in the final period. Bill Roush and Walter Lockwood both had three against them.

TRACK STARS WILL SEEK NEW RECORDS

Small Army of Athletes Entered in First Ohio High School Meet.

By United Press.
CLEVELAND, March 16.—A small army of track and field stars will be striving for new records Saturday when the Cleveland Athletic stages the first official Ohio high school indoor track and field meet at Cleveland's public hall.

A special collegiate invitational meet will be an added attraction. Any records that are established will be recognized by the amateur athletic union.

Interest in the carnival centers around Lee Sentman of the University of Illinois, and Jack Keller, Ohio State sophomore, both outstanding high hurdle experts. They have met twice before in the hurdles this year, each winning once. Keller also is entered in the 50-yard dash. He is the former national scholastic champion. In this event and is determined to break the record of 5.3 set by George Simpson last year in the C. A. C. Ames here.

Jack Galloway of West Virginia, inter-mountain star, will compete in the steeplechase.

The 50-yard dash will attract considerable attention. Toting the line besides Keller will be Armand Hutson of Denison, who finished second to Simpson last year, and Gordon Frazer of West Virginia, who captured the event in the inter-mountain meet.

Joe Sivak, of Butler university, will be the outstanding contender in the mile run. Sivak won the A. C. mile last year in 4:23.10. Recently he ran second to Ray Conger in the mile at Madison Square Garden. He too will have stiff competition in Albert Morgan of Ohio university and Beltram of Ohio State. Morgan is the 1930 Buckeye conference mile champion with a record of 4:30. Beltram placed third in the recent Big Ten relays with a time of 4:26.

Three outstanding teams are entered in the mile relay. The University of Indiana, Ohio State and Butler. Indiana's team won the Big Ten mile relay last year and the same team will run here.

A special two-mile relay will be held for Ohio State, Michigan State Normal and Ohio Wesleyan. Michigan State Normal came to C. A. C. meet last year and won the event in 8:14 & 10.

By Special permission Western Reserve will be allowed to enter a team in the Buckeye conference special mile relay. Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio University will be the other entrants. The present record in the mile relay was set by the University of Pennsylvania in 3:27. All other competing schools will be grouped and separate events held for them.

Colleges entered in the meet are Indiana, Ohio State, Oberlin, Case, Western Reserve, Wooster, Ohio Wesleyan, Michigan State, Illinois, Butler, John Carroll, Denison, Kent State, Ohio Northern, West Virginia and Cleveland college.

Epworth Five Defeats Columbus Y Juniors

The Epworth M. E. Intermediate basketball team, winners of the Intermediate Y league here this year, defeated the Columbus Y. M. C. A. Junior Saturday afternoon on the Columbus court. The final score was 33 to 32. Whitcomb, forward, and Biecher, center, were high scorers for the winning five, both with eight points.

The Columbus team will play a return game here on the Y. M. C. A. court with the Epworth team next Saturday.

SIXTEEN QUINTETS TO BATTLE FOR STATE BASKETBALL TITLES

Canton McKinley, Lancaster St. Mary Favored To Win Cage Crowns.

By International News Service.
COLUMBUS, O., March 16.—Sixteen high school basketball teams all having come through various sectional and regional tournament without serious scars, today were waiting for the big, all-important scrap—the finals in the state championship scramble which will be held at the fairgrounds coliseum here Friday and Saturday.

Canton McKinley and Lancaster St. Mary's were regarded by critics today as the likely winners in class A and class B respectively but in case class seven other teams were waiting for an opportunity to upset the favorite.

The teams which admittedly had ambitions of that variety were: Class A—Columbus Central, Hamilton, Lima Central, Toledo Walte, Zanesville, Portsmouth, and Akron West.

Class B Entrants
Class B—West Milton, Whitmer, Malinta, Newton Falls, Fitch, Stewart and McConnelville.

The above-named clubs were victors in week-end tournaments and are all that remain of a field of 1175 teams that set out in quest of the state title three or four weeks ago.

Canton McKinley was credited with a good chance of becoming state champion, partly because it has almost the same team which was not eliminated at last year's tournament until it was overpowered in the semi-finals here by Dayton Silvers, which took the title for the third straight year.

Lancaster Favored
Lancaster St. Mary took the class B title last year and breezed through all this year's meets without particular difficulty.

Drawings for class A and class B tournament games were scheduled to be held in Governor George White's office at the statehouse today.

Pairings will be arranged so that teams from the same district cannot meet in the first round of the tournament here.

Most teams were reported to be overjoyed at the decision of high school athletic commissioner H. R. Townsend to reduce the length of the floor here for the state tournament. The big floor, one of the largest in the state and much larger than most high school courts, has always been a source of difficulty to teams playing in the state meet here.

Finals in both class A and class B will be played Saturday night.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, March 17

A VERY lively and interesting day is the promise made from the predominant lunar configurations. Under high mental stimulus, and the ever-rising quickened, with Jupiter under most propitious influence, it is a time for pushing to high goals, with every prospect of advancement, financial profit and generally propitious conditions for furthering the happiness and progress of life. But be on guard against duplicity or subtlety.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of large opportunity and achievement. The mental outlook will be large, the faculties quickened and the ambitions keen. All should be pushed to high accomplishment, but be on guard against subtlety, fraud and treachery. A child born on this day should be strong in mind and energies, quickwitted, popular, ambitious and able to undertake important enterprises, but it should be inculcated in ways of principle rather than expediency in gaining its ends.

THEFT SUSPECT KILLS SHERIFF

Indiana Man Also Slays Brother: Commits Suicide To Avoid Arrest.

MONTICELLO, Ind., March 16.—A life-long friendship between Sheriff Roy Fisher, 40, of White county, and Scott Talbott, farmer, ended tragically Sunday when Talbott killed Fisher, wounded a deputy, killed his brother, then committed suicide rather than be arrested for bank robbery.

Talbott, 43, fired upon Fisher without warning when the sheriff and his deputy, Barney Ireland, went to the Talbott farm to serve a warrant issued in Tippecanoe county against Talbott and his brother, William, 34.

The warrant charged that the brothers participated on Feb. 6 in holding up the Eastland Grand bank and stealing $1,400.

When Fisher asked Ireland to accompany him he told the deputy it was unnecessary to take a gun as he "knew" the brothers would not resist.

At the farm, the sheriff was reading the warrant to William Talbott when Scott stepped suddenly from a corn crib and opened fire with a shotgun, killing Fisher instantly. Ireland, unarmed, ran a bullet ripped through his hand as he dodged across a field to summon aid.

When police surrounded the farm later they found the bodies of both the Talbotts in the house. Scott apparently had shot his brother, then committed suicide and fallen across William's body.

NEW PROCESS TAKES KNOCK OUT OF GAS

Latest Discovery Introduces Revolutionary Principle into Fuel Industry.

By Dr. Frank C. Whitmore, dean of the school of chemistry and physics, as the result of extensive research conducted by Dr. M. H. Fenske and his staff.

Dr. Fenske found that knocking in Pennsylvania gasoline is due to extra explosiveness of only certain fractions of the fuel. The case is somewhat like a striped candy cane, with the red stripes representing the knock.

By removing the red stripes only white candy would remain and the gasoline problem is of similar pattern. The gas is surprisingly like the candy cane in one respect, its knock zones exist at all levels. They are as sharply defined as the red and white stripes.

For example, one fraction which can be obtained by distillation at 1161 degrees knocks almost four times worse than another zone which gives only six-tenths of a degree cooler.

At 117 degrees the world's record big knock was discovered, a "fraction" knocking so hard it blew the steel pistons off its test engine into elliptical form. Samples only 8 degrees lower were almost normal.

Dr. Whitmore said there is prospect of converting about 65 to 80 per cent of Pennsylvania gasoline into anti-knock fuel. Some fractions are even better than standard.

Daily Proverb—"Promising is not giving, but Funds approximating $50,000,000 have been made available by the federal government for waterway jobs. Another smash at the solar plexus of unemployment.

From Ottawa comes the news that Canada is preparing to erect more tariff barriers against the products of this country. It carelessly exercised, that reciprocity idea is liable to be shot full of holes.

Judge Wickersham is said to be chagrined over the avalanche of wet criticism which greeted the recent prohibition report of the law enforcement commission. Cheer up, Judge!
It's the way of the world. Those who attain greatly must anticipate a fair proportion of thorns amid the bouquets tossed them.

The Kansas City, Missouri, wife who shot and killed her husband, explains that the tragedy was the result of an accident. It's remarkable how many husbands have been killed by their wives by accident.

A St. Louis woman has been arrested charged with kidnapping and secreting against his will her wealthy husband, who is forty-five years her senior. There's this to be said in her defense; any man who marries a woman almost half a century his junior makes evident that he is in need of restraint.

The first New York policeman tried on a charge of perjury in vice frame-up cases has been found guilty and faces a prison term of ten years. Really, it looks as though Tammany may have to do some more whitewash-ing.

After sixty-one years without an execution, the Kansas legislature has passed a bill to revive capital punishment. The country seemingly is learning that imprisonment, considering the activities of pardon boards and executive clemency, is not an effective preventive of murder.

Colonel Arthur Woods holds that public work must slacken in prosperous times to avert future crises. Not a doubt of it, but the trouble is that it is not in the nature of mankind to get enough prosperity. The more man gets the more he wants, and the thing goes on till the bill can't be met and the bottom drops out of things.

President Daniel Willard, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, opposes the proposal "to draft" the railroads in the event that this country is again forced into war.
The awful mess made of the railroads during the World War justified his opposition, still his case is another to show how the drafting idea is all right provided it applies to the business or industry of the other fellow.

Too Promiscuously Used.

Dr. Frederick J. E. Woodbridge, former dean of the graduate faculties at Columbia university, in a recent address before a New York City gathering decided the freedom with which the word, American, is used, holding that that adjective is being thrown at people and at things promiscuously to the disad-vantage of the United States. Our far too common use of the word, he holds, seemingly has attracted the attention of the people of the outside world to such an extent that they come to this country, take a cursory look at it and us, and return home to explain to their readers in the books and essays they write about us and our country what "American" means, or at least what they assume the adjective means.

"Some of us are confirming by our actions and books," Doctor Woodbridge said, "what these foreigners say, and others of us try to set them right by telling them what we ourselves think the adjective means. It is pertinent to ask if it is a work of wisdom either in ourselves or in foreigners to throw the adjective about as it is so currently thrown, with a scope amounting to 100 per cent. at art, literature, culture, philosophy, morals, manners, money and murders."

Is not the stand of Dr. Woodbridge well taken? Are we not going beyond the boundaries of sense and of reason in the freedom with which we make use of the word? Does not our promiscuous application of the word subtract from the dignity which should attend it? Can it be fitting to refer to some hair-brained philosophy as "American"? Is it well to speak of the methods of certain criminals as "American"? Is it fitting to speak of the "well-recognized American freedom" of manner, action or word? When no two laws, no two blades of grass, no two flakes of snow or no two drops of water are alike, there can hardly be, in the divine scheme of things, two Americans alike. Then why use the adjective derived from the noun which classifies unlike things to describe the thoughts, or views, or morals, or lack of morals, of 120,000,000 of beings?

A Distinct Tint of Sadness.

Out from Arizona, last week, came the story of the cruel break handed to Dr. Percival Lowell, the eminent astronomer who foretold the coming discovery of a ninth planet in our solar system, now known as Pluto, and told the position in the heavens in which it would be found.

Utilizing the first anniversary of the discovery of the planet, Howard W. Blakeslee, science editor of the Associated Press, gave cut at Flagstaff the story of the recent discovery of dust-covered photographic plates taken sixteen years ago at the Lowell observatory which show Pluto in the position in the heavens where Dr. Lowell insisted it would be found.

Dr. Lowell died in 1916. I was the irony of fate that he had at hand, a year before his death, proofs of the existence of a planet, of the approximate size it has since been shown to be, at a position in the heavens in which he held that there must be a planet to explain the course of Neptune in its orbit about the sun, and that he died unaware that the photographs taken by him showed the missing body for which he so long had searched; that he passed away with his life dream unfulfilled, only to have Clyde Burdette, a Kansas farmer boy assistant in what had been the doctor's own laboratory, fourteen years later locate on a photographic plate a dot which proved to be the long-sought planet.

It was contended by some astronomers, immediately following the announcement of the finding of the ninth planet, March 13 of last year, that it was not a planet, but simply a comet. However, the plate upon which the dot was discovered and other plates subsequently taken at Lowell observatory, plates taken at Mount Wilson observatory in 1916, the plates taken at Lowell observatory back in 1915 and many plates taken during the past year at other observatories clearly refute the comet view and show beyond all question that approximately 3,600,000,000 miles away from the sun and something like 1,010,000,000 beyond Neptune there is a ninth planetary body of about the size of the earth, the mass and weight of which are about fifteen per cent. the mass and weight of the earth and the year of which is equal to about 250 of our years. In other words, the earth travels about the sun 250 times while Pluto, forty times more distant than the earth, is making one revolution about the sun.

Every science has its stories of joy and its stories of sadness, but it is to be questioned if any of them has a more distinct tint of the latter than the story telling how Dr. Lowell went to his death without knowing that he had located the planet for which for so many years he had searched.

Senator Dill, of Washington, is quoted as saying that President Hoover's vetoing of the World War veterans' loan bill gained for him, the President, "a million votes." Now had some regular Republican made such a statement it would be easy of understanding, but coming from a western Democrat it makes one sit up and take notice.

The Old Ideas.

A wide span separates Thomas A. Edison's inventive genius from his personal philosophy.
The former is, one may say, considerably ahead of its time. The latter, quite naturally since it was formulated half a century ago, includes many sound, old-fashioned ideas. The effect, fortunately for America, has been to balance Mr. Edison's brilliance with caution.

For instance, Mr. Edison believes that "haste makes waste," which is not at all a common belief today. He observes that a great many devices are being placed on the market as soon as they are developed to the point of having sales values, but long before they have been perfected to the point where they can be made no better. Examples are legion, dozens of them lying in the scope of every individual's experience. Household appliances that only are half effective, machines whose rapid depreciation makes them a liability, automobiles clattered together carelessly to "keep up with the bell"—a thousand things each one taking its toll from the public pocketbook and reflecting discredit on manufacturers and inventors.

Thomas A. Edison's inventions weren't marketed that way, though some of them might have been.

Prohibition Director Woodcock will soon have 500 added agents and $50,000 worth of new automobiles for use by his forces. We assume that the machines will be armored.

The International beauty congress in New York was told that hair restorers made to crink offer a scientific hope for bald heads.
If any of our bald-headed friends begin to acquire luxurious heads of hair, we're just naturally going to grow suspicious.

Will Durant throws light on one of the frailties of humanity in another way by saying: "From the point of view of morals, life seems to be divided into two periods: in the first we indulge; in the second, we preach." Not so bad, that.

Chairman John F. O'Ryan, of the national world court committee, has asked President Hoover to call a special session of the senate in November to act on American adherence to the World court. If the situation permits a wait of seven months for action on the World court, why not wait another month and take it up in the regular December session?

Ex-Chief Engineer John Stevens, of the Panama canal, holds that there is no necessity for a canal in Nicaragua at present, as the Panama waterway is used to but a third of its capacity, and that the building of a third set of locks will care for traffic for the next hundred years. The one answer to this, if it is an answer, is that it is not always well to have all one's eggs in one basket.

Former Congressman Denison of Illinois explained to that Washington jury that gallantry was responsible for the trunk of liquor found in his quarters in the house office building; that in assisting the ladies of the party of which he was a member the trunk of one of the fair travelers became mixed up with his and was forwarded to Washington. Many a man has fallen into trouble as a result of gallantry.

Editorial Opinion.

IT'S VERY SELECT AND EXCLUSIVE.
Irrelevant and inconsiderate correspondents are pointing out that the "progressive" Norris conference, which assembled in Washington to designate the woes of the nation and the in-iquities of regular party men, is composed of landlocked delegates, selected after careful examination of their dispositions, so that discordant elements will not get inside the sacred precincts and cause disturbance or dissonance.
The one exception, the single person admitted without a wedding garment, so to speak, is a conservative in the person of a railroad official who happens to be a personal friend of one of the LaFollettes and admists that he doesn't quite know how he arrived, but is going to see what is going on.

Beside this, unless rumor is highly unfair, additional precaution has been taken against ruffling of the waters by definitely outlawing dangerous topics, and in particular all discussion of the prohibition question.

Altogether, the endeavor has been to secure as much "harmony" as is possible in a gathering necessarily composed to a large extent of persons who sometimes have difficulty in agreeing even with their own reflections in the mirror. And perhaps this exclusiveness is prudent; but whether it is courageous, liberal and in any true sense progressive, is rather another point.

Certainly even those who use the bluegown in the Democratic conclaves and those who operate the renowned steam roller in the Republican gatherings never get anywhere nearly as selective and suppressive as Mr. Norris and his lieutenants—if any—seem to have been.
Neither of the big party conventions ever has attempted to outlaw discussion of the most important and vital problem before the people of the United States. For better or for worse, the dry question has had its innings and the spokesmen on each side have enjoyed a chance to say their say.

Yes, probably it is true that the Democrat and the Republican pundits do not deserve very much credit for letting the prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists orate and present resolutions and do all the other things they may desire to do for the easement of their minds, because the old party gatherings are gatherings representative of the voters of the United States who have a right to expect that big vital issues will be properly considered in them.

But doesn't this very situation draw a contrast between the party conventions and the Norris conference which is utterly damning to the latter, insofar as it professes to be something except a small, class, propagandist organism, and aspires to represent real public sentiment?—Detroit Free Press, March 13.

TOO MANY WARNING SIGNS.

Traffic control, like other human efforts, some times suffers from excess of zeal. Too many sharp curves in a road are a recognized danger, but a broad, straight highway offers a temptation to speeding and reckless driving.
If any of our bald-headed friends begin to acquire luxurious heads of hair, we're just naturally going to grow suspicious.

Robbins Stockel, Connecticut commissioner of motor vehicles, has always been interested in the psychology of the man behind the wheel.
In a recent bulletin he expresses concern over this matter of signs. Sometimes there are too many of them. A slight curve, for example, hardly requires any warning. Perhaps warning signs ought not to be used except where actual danger exists.

"The reason is that an operator's mind may become accustomed to warnings and adjust itself to the idea that the sign ahead is just another inconsequential sign. The extra care which is necessary at a dangerous place may be exercised too late. The age-old story of the boy who cried 'Wolf! Wolf!' is apropos." New York Times.

Dinner Stories.

Owner of small car, who has crashed with a truck—"But couldn't you see me coming?" Truck Driver—"I thought it was a fly on the windshield."

"Hey, mother, Johnny's jabbing me in the eye with a joke book," cried Estelle.
"Johnny," ordered mamma, sternly, "don't be poking fun at your sister."

"Look here," Henpeck protested to his wife one day, "you've kept my nose to the grindstone ever since our marriage, twenty-nine years ago, haven't you?"
"Yes, and I've done more than that," said Mrs. Henpeck. "I've made you turn the grindstone, too."

"Don't you think it's extravagant to eat bread and butter and jam?"
"Of course not! It's economical. The same piece of bread does for both!"

Guarding the Mouth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
There are infections of the mouth and throat which are difficult to recognize. In consequence, the ailments are neglected and often run a long time without receiving the necessary attention. This is particularly true of "Vincent's angina."

Vincent's angina is a term applied to certain ulcer-forming conditions of the mouth and throat. It is an infection of the membrane lining these parts. The germs or bacteria responsible for it are two in number. They only are found in unhealthy tissues. They are rare, if ever, found in the healthy mouth. They are associated with infected conditions of the teeth, gums and tonsils.

The disease differs from the sore throat caused by more dangerous germs. It is not so severe and produces less constitutional effect.
It is rarely dangerous to life.

Included among the symptoms are sore throat, headache and a general feeling of poor health. Temperature in the acute form may be as high as 102 degrees.

If ulcers are present the breath is bad. Swallowing is painful and sometimes the glands of the neck are swollen.

Some epidemics of tonsillitis are really attacks of the Vincent infection. This is confirmed by obtaining the Vincent germs from the throat.

The disease is mild and quickly responds to treatment where there is no mixed infection or complications. This treatment must be given by your doctor or a throat specialist.

It is important to keep the mouth scrupulously clean. This can be accomplished only by systematic brushing of the teeth and care of the gums. Where the tonsils are enlarged and infected they should be removed. If the teeth are infected they should receive proper dental care.

Do not neglect the mouth and throat. It is the gateway for the entry of many germs.
Such germs cause disease that can easily be prevented by proper care and hygiene.

What Society Owes Pasteur.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Today we are accustomed to the idea of public conservation of health. We applaud and support the idea. We allow ourselves to be taxed for the maintenance of the public welfare, judged from the standpoint of individual and collective benefit. Pure water, pure food, pure drugs, correct sanitation—all are integral parts of the higher civilization of today. But all these things are modern attainments, acquired as the result of scientific study.

How much to the matter of public health the world owes to Louis Pasteur. And yet this country boy, who was sent by his father to Paris, to receive the advantages of education which had been denied him at home, soon grew so homesick that he had to return home. He gave up the splendid opportunity of attending the Ecole Normale as the result of a powerful nostalgia, returning to his home at Arbois.
He attended the schools there for two years; and then at the age of twenty, with at last a vivid sense of the great advantages of education, returned to Paris to enter the Ecole Normale. It was not long before he was recognized as an industrious, ambitious and devoted to his studies.

The real inauguration of his career as a scientist was on January 15, 1849, when he became a lecturer on chemistry for six years, as professor of chemistry in the University of Strasbourg. After two years as professor of chemistry at the University of Lille, Pasteur returned to Paris, his headquarters for the remainder of his career.

The petition of the wine growers of Lille and environs to Pasteur to study the fermentation trouble which was ruining their wines set his feet in the path which was to lead him quickly through life. The losses of the wine growers were immense, some years totaling as much as $20,000,000. At that time spontaneous generation was still pretty generally believed in. But a number of scientists, including Pasteur, were able to show that nutritive liquids, if properly sterilized and kept from contact with the air, would remain free of organisms for an indefinite period. Pasteur showed conclusively that living things develop only from living things of the same kind. By growing pure cultures of various types of organisms, he taught the wine growers, brewers and wine manufacturers how to grow and utilize the microscopic organisms required for producing the kinds of wine and beer desired.
Thus he pasteurized the wines, as we say today that dairymen pasteurize milk.

In 1865 Pasteur began his studies of the silkworm industry, which was likewise in a bad state due to diseases of the worms. After elaborate studies he proved that corpuscles and bacteria produced the diseases of the worms; and that transmissions of these organisms must be prevented if the disease is to be prevented. Finally his monumental studies of anthrax resulted in leading him to the studies of diseases of the human being. No one can say how much society owes to Pasteur.—

The First Ohio Company.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The first organization formed for the purpose of acquiring lands in the Ohio valley was the Ohio company, formed by a company of Virginia and Maryland gentlemen in 1748.
Thomas Lee, of Virginia, was the principal member of it. Lawrence and Augustine Washington, half brothers of General Washington, were also members. They interested a London merchant, by the name of Thomas Han-bury, in the project, probably for his influence with the crown, for they must secure the land they sought from the crown.

In this they were successful, and secured a grant of 500,000 acres which it was their purpose to locate south of the Ohio, but they had the right, if they deemed best, to locate north of the river. It was in their papers that they were to colonize the tract and in fact there was a requirement in it that a fort within the tract should be built within seven years of the date of the grant, and 100 families should be located on it. But it does not appear that the company seriously thought of complying with the colonization provision. Nothing was done along that line.

General Washington, then a young man, was employed to ascertain something about the value of these lands and the best locations.
What the project really resulted in was a war between England and France. The French were in nominal control of the territory west of the mountains, claiming it by right of discovery and occupation. But they could not keep the English traders out, and as a matter of fact there were about as many English as French traders in the woods at the time.
Washington's report was not very encouraging.
If a grant of lands were taken and located it would mean fighting to retain it. Of course, France was advised of the land grant and it was tantamount to a challenge of her right to the western territory. Over this territory the tri-color of France waved and such government as existed was administered from Quebec. But on came the French and Indian war, and the lands were settled when Wolfe defeated Montcalm on the plains of Abraham, September 13, 1759.

"Outgre" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

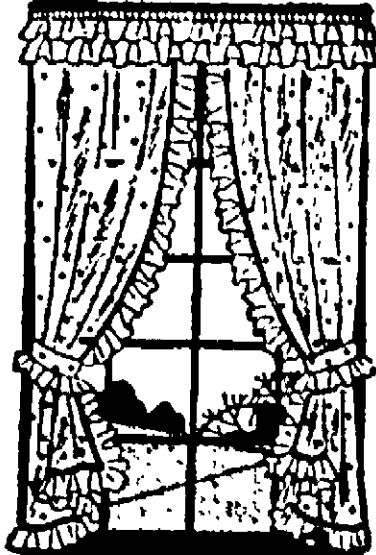

A few drops of "Outgre" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.—Adv.

VICKS
OVER 10 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

VARIETY IS NEW SPRING HAT FEATURE

By International News Service. HOLLYWOOD—This spring it is going to be really difficult unless we are very wise—to avoid losing our head over the new hats offered for our decoration and delight.

Hats this year do not need a yardstick. They are all sizes as well as all shapes. Big, small, irregular, round, or broken up into points, they are all lined up waiting to see that we are to be beautifully framed this season. For our new hats are going to flutter, even glorify us, something that hasn't happened for many seasons. Then, too, we are going to wear hats that are definitely of a certain type. The sports hat will stay at home when we go to a formal luncheon or tea.

BRIMS will be much in evidence, with crowns cleverly manipulated to give character and a definite tendency to the model. The majority of hats to be trimmed for the right trimming can make a veritable triumph out of an otherwise undistinguished model. Some of the most attractive hats have their trimming tucked under the brim, always a charming accent to a pretty face. In the next shops there will be hats that lead a double life. A toque of violets in chiffon or velvet, or perhaps a tiny crown of hollyhocks in pastel shades can be made into a formal hat by the addition of a detachable miller or pleat brim—a new and novel idea.

Tough straw will be trimmed with field flowers for afternoon wear and with plique or grosgrain ribbon for morning use. Handwork will be used to embellish the finer hats. There will be stitched chiffons and stitched and corded shantung, as well as hemstitched and hand-drawn linen. Batons makes a delightful hat of ecru linen, its wide brim embroidered with flat daisies and its hollow crown encircled with a wreath of multi-colored field flowers.

COLOR plays a leading role in the new hat show. There will be much navy blue with white as well as hats with sharp color contrasts such as black with pale green, pale blue, the new faded blue and vivid red. Thus all colors will be permissible but their success will be determined by the manner and skill with which they are used. Sports models in particular will favor color contrasts, but will remain to retain their essential simplicity. Evening hats are definitely black, much to the joy of the woman who stresses the picturesque.

Although young men may think of love in the spring, this trio of lovely maidens would seem to prove that their own sex think rather of the new spring styles, and display the latest models in head dress. At the left we have the popular off-the-face hat, ideal for street wear. (Right). The light paramulac hat, which properly sets off the all-white summer dress. (Below). The wide-brimmed lacy straw hat, with braided design, which matches with the new modes of frilly gowns.

Dr. HARTERS, bending over, looked at the ruler, and then at the man who had told him about the 10,000—

Macadoo blinked, the president of the ruler in his hand, and he looked at the ruler, and then at the man who had told him about the 10,000—

On first catching sight of her, he had looked at her in an extraordinary manner; had called her "Rosemary"; and it had seemed as though he were going to come—

And that second time, when she had been sitting on the seat in the garden and he had come and spoken to her. How his burning deep-set eyes had seemed to search her thoughts and mind and soul. There had been nothing mad about his conversation then. Nothing curious whatever, except that he had again called her "Rosemary".

What a little fool she had been to snub him and declare that she was perfectly well and happy, and not in the least need of his help and advice nor of that of anybody else.

Of course she wasn't either well or happy; and of course she wanted help and advice—more than anything else in the world.

And yet what else could one say or do when a perfect stranger, supposed to be mad, came and uttered mysterious warnings and prescribed for one in an excellent and famous nursing-home?

But then again, her medicine did not agree with her. . . . Not even

EASIEST WAY TO BREAK UP A COLD

Millions Say of This Proved Way

Works Fast—Makes You Feel Like a New Person Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets every three hours. Drink lots of water between times—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, and not so good. It rained all night and was drizzling when I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and when I had went down in my short britches and went out and found my cow and came in and strained the milk and went in to feed my face my milk was up yet, and everyone had a grouse on, so I didn't dare to say anything because whatever I would say would be the wrong thing. I said I hoped the rain would stop, and my father said to let my vitals stop my mouth, so I did.

Feeble and Yonnie and Maggie, the girl that got fascinated on her leg as it wouldn't show, came while we were eating, and after they had stood around and watched and listened to us eat a while, Feeble said for us to cheer up, because they were probably better off, and my father asked her who was better off, and Feeble said that who ever was dead was. My grand father laughed then, but my and looked sorer than ever, and Annabelle Lee dropped a spoon full of oatmeal on the floor, and then when the cat was getting it she dropped her bowl of oatmeal upside down on the cat's head, and the cat went crazy and Annabelle Lee hammered on her chair with her spoon, but nobody laughed, and when they don't laugh at everything Annabelle Lee does something else is a good place for me to be, because whatever I do is wrong, and if I don't do anything that is wrong too.

Just when I was getting my cap and hoping I would make a snail without my and remembering to mop up on my face and neck and ears, and my mother had got the table all cleared off my uncle came out of his room and said, "Good morning, everybody," and my and said good morning and my father grunted, and no one else said anything. Then he asked if breakfast was ready, and my mother said breakfast was over and dinner would be at 12 o'clock for anyone who was there to eat it. My and said he would make him some pancakes, but my mother said he knew when it was meal time, and she couldn't have anyone fussing around the kitchen whilst she was getting the Sunday dinner. So my uncle said never mind, and he reached over and took all the pages of the Sunday paper that my grandfather wasn't reading, and my grandfather never looked up, but when my uncle turned to go to a chair with his paper he saw my grandfather's hat, which I am sure was not there before he wiped the paper. My grandfather said, "Excuse me. Did you put yourself?" My uncle said, "No. Then my grandfather said he was sorry and my and took me over to the kitchen and washed me, and today was Monday, and happened. My uncle said he was in view, but nobody said anything. Maybe he has.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Decides to Name the Baby "Faith"

AS MY FATHER asked me if I knew now what he wished to name my baby daughter, I could scarcely see his face for the mist of tears which I had been trying to force back during his infinitely sad recital of the happiness, killed by his own hand, which had been his with my mother in the days before I came to the world.

"Faith," my mother's middle name, which I never had known she possessed, and which I now learned from my father's saddened lips was his special name for her, because of the divine faith she always gave to him—this was the name he wanted our tiny princess to have. And it was the name she should have. I told myself with a rush of fiercely protective love for him, no matter what anyone—anyone—said.

"Yes, Father," I said when I could trust my voice to speak. "I do know, and I know more than that. 'Faith' is her name from this second."

"I thought so," Lillian commented, smiling, and something healthy and sane in her smile scattered the morbid fancies which my father's recital had brought to me. "I don't see how it could be anything else. It's a wonderful name, too, short, euphonious and almost impossible to nickname. No, I'll take that name," she finished with a wry smile. I knew at the remembrance of "Faith" which is what her schoolmates called Marion, when the little lady got to boarding school, that she probably called her "Tim" or "Bill."

"Never!" I cried so fiercely that Lillian laughed aloud, and even my father's face relaxed into a smile.

What About Richard?

"I fancy that will not be in your jurisdiction, my daughter," he said. "I know it won't," Lillian said with an expressive little shrug of her shoulders. "Indiscretion," my eye! "Nobody in this generation ever has heard of the word."

My father smiled again, though this time a bit mechanically, and turned anxiously to me.

"Are you saying 'Faith' is her name because you think I want it, or because you really like the name?"

"Both," I answered readily and truthfully. "I always have thought it the most beautiful name a woman could have, provided she could live up to it. I pray my daughter can."

"If there is anything in hereditary sin and will," my father replied, looking at me fondly. "But, my darling, have you considered what Richard will say? He, very naturally, wants his daughter named 'Margaret' after you. I would never have suggested this other name, only that your mother-in-law's opposition seemed to be creating a deadlock in the matter. But I should not wish to antagonize Richard about it."

"You won't," Lillian said bluntly. "Just leave him to me. All I'll have to do will be to give him a skeleton outline of what you have just told us, and the softest heart under a hard shell exterior in all this section will be chattering for the name you want. It isn't the Dicky-bird I'm worrying over. It's his mother."

"I think you wrong her, Lillian," my father said, a bit dubiously. "Oh! I know her faults and I often have silently recoiled—justly, or not, I cannot tell, what I have considered her cavalier treatment of Margaret. But I think she is a big woman underneath her capacious nose, and that a story like mine cannot help but appeal to her."

"It will give her a way out, and a chance to be a martyr, anyway," Lillian commented cynically, then caught herself up remorsefully. "Oh! I ought not to talk like that about the poor old girl. She's pure gold when you can get the alloy separated, but it takes quite a lot of separation."

My father's face, grave with disapproval of her levity, broke into an involuntary smile.

"Lillian, you are incorrigible," he said as he rose from his chair. "But I'm glad you both approve."

Hemorrhoids Go Quick

All Pile Misery Ended Without Cutting or Salves

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back. If you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonard discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 980 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. Henney & Cooper says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back—Ad.
